"MONZA"

Washington, D. C.—"Not so very far from the battle-swept frontier that takes its way through the Tyrol Alps lies the Italian town of Monza, wherein one of the most precious of Italy's innumerable historic relics is preserved, the famous 'Iron Crown of Lombardy,' according to a war primer just issued by the National Geographic Society at Washington. 'This iron crown came to the Lombards and to its fame through the gift of Pope Gregory the Great, who presented it to a German princess as a reward for converting her consort to Christianity. 'Theodolinda was the daughter of a Bavarian king. Reasons of policy brought about an arrangement of her marriage to the Lombard king, and she agreed to the marriage, and to the unusual charm and beauty; and, the story runs, Autharis, who had secretly joined his embassy for the negotiation of his marriage, met the princess as a simple Lombard courtier, and the affection that grew up between them caused the princess to oppose her marriage with the unknown king with all the power of her persuasion.

"Monza, the northern city, dates its first important associations from the coming of Theodolinda. The German queen won the devotion of her subjects, and upon the death of Autharis, they agreed to recognize as their king any prince whom she might choose for her second husband. Agilulf, Duke of Turin, was Theodolinda's choice, and he it was, whom she converted to Christianity, whereby the Lombard iron crown started upon its centuries' career of wonderful associations with queens, kings and emperors.

"Pope Gregory's gift was a fillet of iron, which, according to pious traditions, was beaten out of one of the nails which fastened Jesus to the Cross. This relic was brought to Rome by the Empress Helena, and was guarded as a relic of marvelous powers.

"The iron fillet was used to crown the German Emperors Kings of Italy. It was used at the coronation of Charles V., of Napoleon, and of Emperor Ferdinand. It was this crown, too, that was used as the symbol for a united Italy, and with the Lombard iron crown set in a gold crown of Byzantine workmanship, the King of Italy took his coronation oath and announced the arrival of a united Italian people among the nations of Europe.

"The church, in whose treasury the Lombard crown is preserved, together with other relics of the great Lombard Queen, was founded by Theodolinda. In this Basilica of San Giovanni at Monza are the Queen's fan and comb of gold, and the golden hen and seven golden chicks, which represent Lombardy and her seven provinces.

"Monza lies eight miles north-northeast of the great commercial and industrial city of Milan, with which it is connected by both steam and electric roads. It is built upon the Lambro, a tributary of the Po, and its 32,000 citizens have caught the hustling spirit of the metropolis in the south. Monza has a flourishing industry, with cotton goods and felt hats as its staple products. Its greatest memory is of its beautiful Bavarian Queen, and its most precious possession is the iron crown which Pope Gregory gave to her."

SILO BUILDING IN KENTUCKY

From letters received by the Kentucky Agricultural Experiment Station from farmers in all sections of Kentucky, as well as from other sources of information, it is evident that more silos will be erected in Kentucky this season than in any previous year in the history of the State. Immediately following the laying of the corn crop new silos were begun on hundreds of farms and a conservative estimate will place the number of silos constructed this season above the thousand mark.

Farmers throughout Kentucky have learned the many advantages of the silo. They have begun to realize the great saving in storage space made possible by the use of the silo and have come to appreciate the advantage of having green succulent feed for their stock in the winter time. For several years past Kentucky beef cattle men who fed corn single have made the biggest profits on their feeding operations. Dairy men also have found that cows fed on silage give a much larger flow of milk and return much greater net profit than when fed entirely upon dry feeds.

The Kentucky Experiment Station has established a silo and barn building service which gives valuable assistance to farmers who contemplate the erection of silos and barns of any type. Through this service farmers may receive bills of materials and estimates of cost of silos of any type—concrete, wood, brick, tile or metal. Upon request the Station also expert will visit individual farms, locate silos and give detailed instruction in the erection of silos. The Station has a number of forms for use in building concrete silos. A set of these forms may be obtained by any farmer in the State for a nominal rental fee. Last year a large number of Kentucky farmers availed themselves of this service to their great satisfaction and profit. Many farmers also took advantage of the opportunity to secure plans, estimates of cost and bills of materials for farm barns.

For detailed information or any problem relating to silos and barn construction, address Kentucky Agricultural Experiment Station, Lexington, Ky.
